Mardi Gras in December ?

Are you kidding?

While many are still enjoying Christmas cheer and ringing in the new year, local costume designer Carter Church is already putting the finishing touches on outfits literally fit for kings and queens. With Mardi Gras following close on the tail of the holiday season this year, Church will barely have time to say Happy New Year. His fabulous creations will be worn by the royalty of such Krewe as the king and queen of Iris and Sparta. Fat Tuesday is February 8. (Echo Photo by Bennie Shallbetter)

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
 STAFF WRITER

Hancock County Temporary Assistance For Needy Families (TANF) Families First Resource Center is here to stay for at least another year. Program director Connie Gibson said the center has received funding for 2005.

The center works closely with the Department of Human Resources and youth court to offer many programs beneficial to families in crisis or who are in need of assistance. They also provide a referral service for families or individuals in need of clothing, housing or other essentials.

The center hosts a parent support group, offers classes for parents and future parents and for foster or adoptive families. They can offer suggestions to parents going through a divorce who are concerned about how the divorce will affect their children. They also offer a life skills class in the school system for teens and an after school program, as well as parent aide services.

Right now, as always, the center is looking for volunteers, Gibson said. Training is provided so no skills are required to volunteer.

Top ten stories of 2004

BY JOHN WATERMAN
STAFF WRITER

The following are summaries or compilations of the top 10 news stories in Hancock County over the past year. The titles come from the original headline, and the stories reflect any important developments since their publication.

First they burned the store, then they hit the house

Originally published on Jan. 1, 2004

Ronnie Cuevas, chief administrator for the Hancock County Sheriff's Office, found was the target of two arson attempts near the first of the year. His grocery store in Pearlington was burned to the ground on Dec. 4, and his home was targeted a month later.

Cuevas awoke on Dec. 29 to the sound of footsteps on his roof. He went outside to investigate, he saw a figure fleeing towards the highway. After checking the roof, Cuevas found a fire on his roof next to a can of gasoline. Cuevas extinguished the fire.

To this date, eight individuals have been arrested in connection with the fires: Malon Jack "Buddy" Dawsey, Bryan Dawsey, Barry Dawsey, James Carver, Jimmie East, Jerry Stogner and Kerri Menard.

Investigators from the Sheriff's office determined that these crimes were revenge for an investigation which resulted in Malon and Bryan Dawsey being charged for connection with a "chop shop." Earlier, in 2003, Chief Investigator Kenny Hurt's truck was stolen from the driveway of his home in Waveland, and recovered from the chop shop operation. The vehicle had been stripped of its police radios and weapons.

All of the suspects in the arson case are still awaiting trial.

Dog fighting ring busted—28 pit bulls found, most of them euthanized

Originally published on Jan. 15

A large dog fighting ring in Kiln was broken up in an impromptu raid by the Hancock County Sheriff's Department.

Sgt. Jason Chandler and Deputy Tim Campbell were investigating an anonymous 911 hang-up call when they spotted dozens of cars parked on property owned by Tim Larousse. Both deputies ascertained that a dog fight was in progress, and arrived on the scene just before the fighting began.

Many spectators fled into the woods when the deputies arrived, but left their vehicles, as the deputies had blocked the driveway. Upon arrival, they discovered over two-dozen caged pitbulls, a huge cache of veterinary supplies, and the rotting carcasses of several dead dogs.

Most of the pitbulls had to be euthanized. Two were put down at the scene because they began fighting.

Twenty-two suspects were arrested and charged with felony counts of dog fighting. Many of them are scheduled to go on trial in Feb. 2005.

CSX found liable in 1999 train deaths
Jury awards victims families $5.2 million

Originally published on June 29, 2004

The longest trial in the history of Hancock County resulted in a landmark decision that held CSX railways liable in the deaths of three Hancock County youths.

Cecile Bilbo, Thomas Finegan and Joseph Winningham were killed in 1999 when their car was struck by a train at the Webb St. Crossing in Bay St. Louis.

After two weeks of testimony, the jury sided with the families of the victims, finding CSX at least 50 percent liable for the deaths of their children.

Will Denton, with the firm Denton, Jenner and Walker, represented the families said of the outcome, "We don't know of a verdict against the railroads in over 15 years."

Denton died earlier this month.

Toward the end of the trial, the judge instructed the jury that there could be no punitive damages, which usually result in the largest settlements. CSX, he said, could only be found liable for negligence, and then only if they found them at least 50 percent liable for the accident.

Hancock man charged in deaths of pair found in grave

Originally published on April 8, 2004

Two bodies were found in a shallow grave on Lower Bay Road earlier this year on March 18. A month later, the Hancock County Sheriff's department made an arrest.

Troy Galarza, 36, of Hancock County, stands accused of the murders of Steve Bossier, 42, and Melissa Polk, 26, both of Pearl River, LA.

Both Bossier and Polk were described as being "known friends and associates" of Galarza's by the Hancock County Sheriff's Department.

Their bodies were discovered in a shallow grave on Lower Bay Road in Clermont Harbor. Sheriff's investigators determined that the bodies had been there for some time before discovery.

If convicted of these crimes, Galarza faces a maximum penalty of life imprisonment and a $10,000 fine on both counts.

Galarza later sued Sheriff Steve Garber for wrongful imprisonment, claiming that the $2 million bond set initially be the Sheriff's department, and later upheld by the Hancock County Justice Court.

Stennis rocket test helps put space program back on track

Originally published on July 18

Since the Columbia Space Shuttle crashed on Feb. 1, 2003, NASA has not launched another space flight.

Thanks to the efforts of NASA's "Return to Flight" project, that is about to change, and Stennis Space center has been instrumental in seeing the project through.

All three Space Shuttle Main engines that will be attached to the Space Shuttle Discovery were tested successfully this year at Stennis. The shuttle is scheduled to launch in Spring of 2005, perhaps as early as March. It will be the first flight since the Columbia crashed last year.

Admiral Tom Donaldson, director of Stennis Space Center, said the Return to Flight program was the necessary first step in continuing the exploration of space. As such, he said, the engineers testing the rockets took their responsibilities very seriously.

"Stennis us all about the the power end of the space shuttle, and the special cargo of the astronauts at the other end."

Vaughn acquitted in '03 shooting of Larry Garcia

Originally published on Oct. 24

A murder that took place after the 2003 Nereids parade remained unresolved after a jury acquitted Simon Rayfield Vaughn of Bay St. Louis.

Vaughn had stood accused of fatally shooting Larry Garcia and wounding his cousin, Dallas Fowler. The two victims had gone to the corner of Herlihy and Oliviera Streets in Waveland to buy cocaine. A block party had been in progress at the time, and every eyewitness later admitted they had been drinking heavily. All of their stories had variations, but all of them said they saw a gunman fire a shot into Garcia's truck.

No murder weapon was recovered, and no physical evidence was linked to Vaughn.

Vaughn had been arrested earlier this year in February by the Waveland PD as their main suspect in the killing. After three days of testimony, the jury acquitted Vaughn of the murder charge.

Vaughn remains in custody at the Hancock County jail, where he is awaiting trial for several unrelated drug charges.

Legion dedicates Hancock County WWII Memorial

Originally published on Nov. 14

A monument honoring all Hancock County citizens who served in the Second World War was formally dedicated on Veterans Day, Nov. 11.

The monument, which stands on the front lawn of the Hancock County Courthouse contains the names of over 1500 south Mississippians who stepped forward to serve their country in its time of need.

The dedication was preceded by the Veterans' Day Parade, and featured guest speakers such as Admiral Tom Donaldson and Leo Seal, Jr. A gun salute honoring the fallen followed.

Earlier that year, the Waveland Memorial had been vandalized by persons unknown. It took volunteers hours to clean and scrape off the graffiti, which had been drawn in black grease paint.

Study shows very low Dioxin Level in Fish

Originally published on Nov. 21

Despite protestations from the general public, DuPont was able to gain permits to increase their air emissions. The company proposed annexing 32 acres of wetlands, but did not go through with their project. Official letters of opposition to the project had been sent to the company by both the Hancock and Harrison County boards of supervisors.

The Mississippi Department of Environmental Quality later released test results which showed extremely low dioxin levels in fish caught in the area.

After reviewing the test results, Michael Tritico, a biologist from Louisiana,

Cuevas' Quotes

by Ellis C. Cuevas
Publisher Emeritus

Be careful with those new bikes

Hopefully all youngsters had their Christmas wishes filled with special requested toys.

Santa had a cold night to make deliveries, but since he lives at the North Pole, our 20 degree weather is a warm time for him.

I am sure there will be some lucky boys and girls who have received bicycles, skates and scooters, etc., the kind of things special instructions and equipment should be used in their use.

Helmets for wheels are recommended and it is hoped that all parents will make sure their youngsters have the correct equipment and training in the use of their toys.

Those old enough to have bicycles also need to observe all traffic rules and regulations too. Parents need to make sure the kids are aware of those rules and regulations.

Each year many children are injured on bicycles, skates, etc. I can remember the time when I was young and fell with my old heavy bicycle and broke my leg, so accidents do happen.

Christmas gifts are for youngsters to enjoy themselves and I hope that each and everyone will enjoy their gifts and be safe too.

The year 2004 for me just seemed to buzz by rather swiftly.

Yet, there seemed to have been many things of major importance to take place in our area.

One of the major developments in 2004 is the Bay St. Louis and Waveland annexation plans which now awaits a judge's decision.

Two cities want to annex some of the same areas, while another faction, residents of the areas, do not want to be annexed and then there are probably some who want to be part of one city and not the other.

No matter what decision comes from the judge, there will be some very unhappy folks.

In all probability this 'football' will be kicked around for several years before it is finally completely resolved.

Holidays means some folks will be discharging fireworks during some of their celebrations.

In my younger years, myself and three brothers did our share in Waveland.

We were lucky in that we never received any serious injury.

If you do handle fireworks, please use caution, because every year many are injured handling them.

Supporting the troops

This Holiday season is a time of family and friends for the majority of us in South Mississippi. However, many homes had an empty seat at the dinner table this year, just as in each holiday season since the War on Terror began after the attacks of September 11, 2001. Men and women of the United States military must often spend their holidays away from those they love. Their mission and duty makes us proud; their absence only makes us miss them and pray for their safety.

Since many of the troops from South Mississippi could not be home for the Holidays, I made sure a little piece of home was with them. 1,000 pounds of shrimp was delivered to the Gulfport Seabees in the Middle East just before Christmas. Originally, I had planned to deliver the shrimp personally. However, due to votes scheduled in D.C. I was unable to accompany the precious cargo. I know that seafood is no substitution for family, but I think this was a way to let Mississippi's service men and women know we are thinking of them. I have confirmed that the Seabees did receive the shrimp and I hope to hear of the feast in January when I plan to visit the troops overseas.

In addition to shrimp for the Seabees, I was enthused by the overwhelming support that went into making the farewell celebration for the 155th Combat Brigade Team a success. In addition to the dignitaries who spoke at Camp Shelby for Operation Send Off on Wednesday Dec. 22nd, many businesses, municipalities, and individuals formed a small army of volunteers who helped prepare hamburgers, hot dogs, chicken, gumbo, and shrimp for the troops, their families, and guests. Preparing food for 10,000 people was an undertaking I had never experienced and it was not possible without the help of the

IN CONGRESS

By Representative

many sponsors who donated food, equipment, time, and manpower. Despite the overcast weather, the send off and cookout were a success.

The 155th has a rich history of serving our nation. Dating back to 1798, its ancestors have fought in every major American military confrontation. These brave men and women are carrying on that great legacy and will put their training and skill to work for the defense of freedom and liberty. I, and the rest of the volunteers who served the troops that day, were humbled to be in the presence of the world's greatest soldiers. Mississippi has always supported our troops and we were all glad to show our respect and appreciation for their patriotism. I would like to recognize and thank those groups that made the cookout a success.

Against immense obstacles our military has made great strides in securing Iraq and Afghanistan and allowing democracy to become a reality in the region. There is still a lot of work to be done. Let's remember to keep our freedom fighters in our prayers.

Shooting star offers sign of hope, peace

AN AP OPINION
EXCHANGE
BY KIM JOBE
DAILY CORINTHIAN

Signs. From time to time, we all look for them as answers that someone is listening to us from above. Or simply as hope personified in an animate object.

Different people have different signs that are significant to them. Some are simple ones while others tend to need the more complex signs to let them know everything is really gonna be OK.

A rainbow, specific cloud formation or unusually colored sunset are signs for some people that things are going to turn around.

Certain songs showing up on a radio station play list, a bell ringing or the voice of a friend on the other end of a phone signal peace for others.

Still others find hope in the eyes of a baby or the reassuring hug of a small child. My sister and nephew rely on the feathered kind of sign. A cardinal flying by or perched on a tree branch speaks volumes to both of them during difficult or confusing situations.

Whatever the method, you tend to look for these signs in times of greatest need or distress. Or just times when you need encouragement.

I'm no skeptic, mind you, when it comes to faith. I just sometimes have a difficult time putting my trust into it wholeheartedly. With this in mind, it would come as no surprise that I don't have a specific object that I tend to look for as a sign of reassurance.

For me, it has to be unusual things showing up in common places to get my attention.

Take a recent Sunday night for example. Unable to make myself go to bed at a decent time, I decided at around 11:30 p.m. that I needed to take the trash outside. Some folks might think that time of night is an unusual time to traipse outside, sockfooted and trash bag in hand.

Forcing the plastic bag into the already stuffed receptacle, I noticed some nearby neighbors had put up new holiday lights. Taking a brief moment to enjoy the flickering bulbs, I suddenly realized how brightly the natural lights were shining in the clear, crisp sky.

Scanning the stars, I attempted to locate the few constellations that I knew when suddenly, and without any warning, a light streaked across the sky toward the west. Stunned, I held my breath for a split second. Finally coming to my senses, I quickly made a wish.

I won't give away the contents of my wish, just in case that might really jinx its ability to come true, but it was pretty much an open-ended one.

Trying to not be selfish in the midst of the season of giving, and sensing there might not be another shooting star pass my way anytime soon, I made sure my wish included some of those I consider near and dear. One part of the wish I will share, though, because it has already come true in a sense. In the season where the hustle and bustle tries to overtake the real meaning of the celebration, I stood on my driveway and wished for peace on Earth. Granted that wish hasn't totally come true around the globe as wars still rage in distant lands. But I will take that one shooting star as a sign of the possibility of peace.

Just as the lyrics to a song I learned as a small child goes, peace has begun with me for it has sprung eternal within my heart. I determined that clear, calm night that no matter how bleak things seemed around me, I was going to look for a sign of light within the situation and focus on that positive source.

From now on, too, I will look for those shooting stars at unusual times to indicate the continuation of the process of peace throughout the world. I don't think it's impossible to achieve at all. Especially if we start from within.

They wish you a merry Christmas

Chorus members under the direction of East Hancock Elementary teacher, Shanna Boyer, traveled around the county singing wishes of good cheer. The 56 member Honors Chorus began caroling at the Hancock County School District Office, and then sang for the residents in Woodland Village. The home of a P.E.O. Society member was next on the tour where the students harmonized for the ladies of the educator's organization. The annual Tree Lighting and Santa Visit held at East Hancock found the chorus entertaining the crowd around the newly lit Christmas tree. On the anniversary of the day America entered WWII, the students performed for the men and families of the local V.F.W. In an effort to sing their thanks to the military. The carolling culminated with a School Sing-along that involved all of the students at East Hancock Elementary, the teachers and visiting parents.

Annexation trial is over; judge still deliberating
Decision could take up to six months

Originally published on Dec. 16, 2004

The much-disputed annexation of territories around Highway 603 finally came to trial in November. Judge James Thomas heard testimony from government officials and expert witnesses from the cities of Waveland and Bay St. Louis.

Thomas has up to six months to reach a verdict, although he stated that he would like to reach a verdict as soon as possible.

Each town felt more qualified than the other to annex the disputed business corridor along Highway 603. Mayor Eddie Farve said that Bay St. Louis would need the entire corridor to make the annexation feasible.

A petition containing the names of 2,000 people who lived along the corridor who opposed annexation by Bay St. Louis was entered into the record over the objections of the city's attorney, Jerry Mills.

A section of the corridor from Highway 90 to DeRussey motors already falls within the Waveland city limits.

Pit bull-mix mauls month old infant

Kamryn Alexis Billingsley, a thirty-four day old infant was died on the morning of Dec. 13 from a fatal dog bite at a Shoreline Park residence.

The child's mother, Samantha Billingsley, 19, had been sleeping in a spare bedroom at the home of Garrad Marquar in Bay St. Louis, when she awoke to discover her daughter missing. The child was discovered with the dog in another room.

The baby was pronounced dead on the scene, and the dog was put to sleep later that day. The case is still under investigation and review by the Hancock County Sheriff's Office and Assistant District Attorney Chris Schmidt.

Both Sheriff Steve Garber and local veterinarian Charlie West urged caution with any large animal around young children.

(Beaches Environmental Assessment and Coastal Health) Act. MDEQ will now be utilizing enterococci bacteria instead of fecal coliform bacteria as the indicator of pathogen levels for coastal beach waters.

MDEQ regularly conducts water sampling to ensure the waters of the State are clean and healthy. Water samples from multiple locations along the Mississippi Gulf Coast are obtained and tested for levels of bacteria. By testing for enterococci bacteria, MDEQ is able to ensure that Mississippi's coastal waters are healthy for recreational uses.

Phil Bass, Director of MDEQ's Office of Pollution Control, believes that "the implementation of new bacteria criteria will continue protection of citizens utilizing Mississippi Gulf Coast waters for recreational purposes from harmful levels of bacteria. Continued monitoring of these waters allows MDEQ to notify the public if acceptable bacteria levels are exceeded."

Deployment ceremony held for 4,000 troops

BY HOLBROOK MOHR
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (AP) — There were smiles and tears at Camp Shelby Wednesday during a deployment ceremony for the 155th Brigade Combat Team. Many of the soldiers' family members described the bittersweet moment knowing their loved ones would be home for Christmas but in war-torn Iraq within weeks.

The 155th was called up in June and has been training at the sprawling 136,000-acre south Mississippi base near Hattiesburg since then. The training included a month-long stint in the Mojave Desert at Fort Irwin, Calif.

On Wednesday, a large American flag whipped in the wind as well-wishers crowded into the 3,000-seat bleachers and spilled onto nearby grassy areas. Young children darted across the damp parade field under overcast skies to steal a last-minute hug from relatives as the unit fell into formation.

Maj. Gen. Harold Cross, Mississippi's adjutant general, said the 4,000 soldiers from Mississippi, Arkansas and Vermont "will go from here to meet the enemies of the United States of America as the watchmen on the wall of freedom."

Cross said the 155th would have the best equipment and training available to carry out its mission.

"I just returned from Iraq and I've seen the armor that you'll have. Every vehicle, 100 percent of those vehicles that roll with you north across the border to Iraq from Kuwait, are armored," he said, prompting applause from the crowd.

Young children waved small flags high above their heads while many adults wiped tears as Gov. Haley Barbour and the Guard's top brass inspected the ridged formation of soldiers.

"I'm proud, indeed I am humbled to be your commander in chief," Barbour told the Mississippi troops taking part in the ceremony. "We wish you success, victory in the war on terror."

Lt. Gen. Russel L. Honore, commander of the 1st Army, prompted an eruption of cheers and applause as he yelled "Dixie" and the sea of troops shouted back "Thunder."

The 155th's nickname is Dixie Thunder.

Honore said the combat team was "fit to fight. They are ready to go. They are confident, competent and they're disciplined and that's what we need in a warrior."

After the ceremony, Pvt. Brandon

Dye's 6-year-old daughter, McKenzie, sat on her father's knee and cleaned his glasses as he described his reasons for joining the National Guard.

"I'm a patriot and you can't just tell your children to be a patriot and not do anything," the 30-year-old father of two said. "You can't just talk the talk. You have to walk the walk."

Dye, of Hattiesburg, said he re-enlisted in November after an earlier eight year stint in the Guard and hopes his experience will benefit students when he completes his degree in history at the University of Southern Mississippi and 23. Sumrall said the child, who wore a red hooded jacket pulled tightly over his head, had been carrying a picture of his father around the house during Bryan Sumrall's weeks of training. She said separation will be difficult.

Quotes from troop sendoff

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Comments by soldiers, family members during Wednesday's deployment ceremony at Camp Shelby for 4,000 members of the 155th Brigade Combat Team:

"The time for protest is before the war," said Pvt. Brandon Dye, 30, of Hattiesburg. "After the war starts, you just support the troops."

"It was the best we could have gotten," said Spt. Michael Bodin, 19, from Madison. "We were trained by people that have been over there, so it should be the best we can get."

"He's ready to do his job, what he's trained for and come home," Tammy Sumrall of George County said of her 23-year-old son Sgt. Brian C. Sumrall.

"Go and get the job done, be safe and come home," said Melinda Arnold of Carriere, whose husband, Sgt. Larry Arnold, 46, and son, Spt. Robert Arnold, 20, are part of the brigade. "I'm proud of each and every one of them."

"I'm happy and I want to cry," Kelly Ponder, 25, of Mendenhall said when asked about her husband, Sgt. 1st Class Thomas Ponder, 23. "I'm mixed up. He's ready to go and I'm not ready, but I'm proud of him."

Melinda Arnold of Carriere wore a shirt adorned with photographs of her husband and son, Spt. Larry Arnold, 46, and Spt. Robert Arnold, 20, both of whom are assigned to the 155th.

"I'm proud and sad," she said. "We're going to go home and cherish every moment with them."

The soldiers were granted a 10-day leave to spend with their families before leaving for Iraq.

Tammy Sumrall of George county, with 22-month-old grandson in tow, waited for the arrival of her son, Sgt. Bryan C. Sumrall, While most of the soldiers hurried to get home, Guard leaders were just as eager to ensure their families that the troops are prepared.

"We trained hard, we learned a lot of good lessons, we've prepared ourselves and now it's time to go and do our duty," said Col. Augustus Collins, commander of the 155th.

Cross has also been insistent in recent days that the soldiers are prepared. He told The Associated Press on Tuesday that he visited Iraq last week and saw that 100 percent of the vehicles that the 155th will take forward are armored with level 1, 2 or 3 armor."

Level 1 armor is added during the manufacturing of a vehicle, level 2 is manufactured kits that can be added in the field and level 3 is "locally fabricated and installed kits," 2nd Lt. Andy Haggard, a Mississippi Guard spokesman said.

The military's equipment in Iraq has become an area of contention since 23 Army reservists, three from Mississippi, claimed their vehicles were not safe and refused to transport fuel in October.

The issue popped up again earlier this month when a member of Tennessee's 278th Regimental Combat Team asked Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld why soldiers have to dig through local landfills for pieces of scrap metal and compromised ballistic glass to up-armored their vehicles."

The combat team consists of about 3,500 Mississippi Army National Guard members from the 155th Separate Armored Brigade. Other soldiers in the team are from Company B from the 1st Battalion 172nd Armor from Vermont and Company C 212th Signal Battalion from Arkansas.

Pfc. Vallon Williams, 34, from Petal said the unit is well trained.

"We're ready to go over there and get it over with," he said. "Keep us in your prayers and throw us a party when we get back."

Krewe of Diamondhead crowns royalty at gala

The Diamondhead Country Club was packed with Mardi Gras revelers on Saturday December 4, 2004 for the Krewe of Diamondhead's Coronation Gala. That was the occasion of the crowning and awarding of the scepters of King Alii Honua XXX Mario Feola and his beautiful Queen Charlotte Feola.

Over 200 Royal subjects were in attendance to celebrate the thirty years of the Krewe of Diamondhead. The decor of the room was fantastic and the attendees said, "this was the best one ever." It is difficult to figure how Ball Director, Jan Gustafson will improve on this for the Mardi Gras Ball on January 29, 2005.

The Krewe enjoyed the evening of entertainment, music, good food, libation, and dancing.

The celebration did not cease. The next morning, the Official Krewe of Diamondhead King and Queen Flags were hoisted at the home of King Mario and Queen Charlotte Feola and are flying now. The group in attendance were treated to champagne cocktails followed by a brunch at the Diamondhead Country Club; thus the beginning of the Krewe of Diamondhead's Mardi Gras Season.

Some of the major activities for the Krewe of Diamondhead are; Mardi Gras Ball, January 29, 2005; Parade and Party, February 5, 2005; and Day at the Races, February 28, 2005.

Campus Ministry

Our Lady Academy's Campus Ministry Service Organization, with the help of the OLA student body and faculty, made holiday contributions to various coastal groups. Food items were collected and donated to the Hancock County Food Pantry. Christmas presents were bought for individuals named by the Hancock County Human Resource Agency in Bay St. Louis and the Ladner Homes of Long Beach. Gift bags of personal hygiene items were prepared and sent to the Gulf Coast Women's Center for Nonviolence in Gulfport, and the Interfaith Hospitality Network in Biloxi. Campus Ministry members include Rebekah Kennedy, left, Katherine Guichet, Hillary Goodfellow, Cady Reinhart, Allie Hennessey, Megan Chevis, Laurie Benvenuti, and Kaitlyn Stovall.

Record donation

Hope Haven Children's Shelter received its largest single corporate donation in its ten year history when executives with Caesars Entertainment (Grand Casinos) donated a check for almost $43,000 from a charity golf tournament held this fall at their prestigious Grand Bear Golf Course. Margie Toups, Board President, praised the organizers and staff of the Corporate offices, the Grand Casino in Gulfport, who hosted the reception and the Grand Bear Golf Course. "It is easy to see why the word Grand is included in their name...everyone associated with this effort was so professional and helpful. We will always be grateful to them." Part of the donation will be used to remodel the shelter and expand the tiny kitchen and dining room commented Terry Latham, Hope Haven Director. Plans also call for the addition of one additional bedroom to allow for greater flexibility in housing the children. Pictured are Lee Renninger, left, Steve Cox, Jeff Davis of Caesars Entertainment and Terry Latham & Margie Toups of Hope Haven.

Smith named Rotary's Pass Christian Citizen of the Year

Michelle D. Smith was awarded Pass Christian's prestigious award of Citizen of the Year - 2004 by Rotary Club President, Whitson Christy at the annual Pass Christian Chamber/Rotary Banquet held at the Pass Christian Yacht Club on December 8.

Smith, a retired nurse, is married to A. C. Smith, a retired Psychologist. They are residents of Pass Christian. Many of her accomplishments most recently have been related to beautifying the City through her involvement with the Pass Christian Garden Club.

She has been the driving force for landscaping the Library grounds, "Friendship Memorial Triangle" at Poindexter and Lemoine, Twin Oaks Assisted Living, The Old Town Library, and many other areas that needed to be spruced up.

She has been a Member, Officer, and/or Board Member of: the Pass Christian Historical Society; the Pass Christian Friends of the Library; the Pass Christian Lighthouse Society; the Pass Christian Art Association; the Boys and Girls Club; the Pass Christian Garden Club and Mayor-appointed member of the Pass Christian Historic Preservation Commission.

Smith was active on Pass Christian's Tricentennial Committee and being an accomplished Sculptor, created a bust of D'Iberville which has been displayed around the Coast.

The Pass Christian Unit of the Boys and Girls Club are the benefactors of Smith's talents on Friday afternoons when she teaches the youngsters crochet, supplying most of the materials.

Her students are: Ayonna Hall, Jamika Polk, Sydney Dedaux, Jade Dedaux, Sade Conway, Iesha Hatcher, Amanda Brommer, Emily Amos and Monae

Howard. As with the Boys and Girls Club, Smith willingly is physically involved with each of the projects that she instigates, getting right in with the city workers doing hard back-breaking work & sweat until dark. Michelle Smith loves Pass Christian and when she sees a job that needs to be done, she does it!

All-American scholar

In a ceremony held June 5, 2004 at Bennett Auditorium on the University of Southern Mississippi, Leann is seen receiving her medal as a National Award winner in Honor Roll and Algebra from keynote speaker, Mr. Jay Lindsey, of Thomas International Publishing Company and Dr. Frances A. Kames, Director of the Frances A. Kames Center for Gifted Studies at the University of Southern Mississippi. The USAA has established the All-American Scholar Award Program to offer deserved recognition to superior students who excel in the academic disciplines. The All-American Scholar must earn a 3.3, or higher, grade point average. These are awards few students can even hope to attain. LeAnn, who attends Bay-Waveland Middle School will appear in the All-American Scholar Yearbook, which is published nationally. She is the daughter of Thomas Lee and Deborah K. Williams of Bay St. Louis. Her grandparents are Ruby Taylor of Louisville, Ky. and the late William Williams of Bay St. Louis, also Conrad Mauffray and the late Marie Mauffray of Bay St. Louis.

Hip advice from old Ben Franklin

Time is money and Ben Franklin was no slouch: "Leisure time for doing something useful; this leisure the diligent man will obtain, but the lazy man never; a life of leisure and a life of laziness are two things." Erin Barrett and Jack Mingo, authors of "Ben Franklin's Guide to Wealth," (Conari Press) encourage frenzied workers of today, caught up in the craziness of modern times, to practice what Franklin preached long ago.

"Employ thy time well, if thou meanest to gain leisure."

Try these four ways to save money by saving time: * How much time do you devote to watching television, playing computer games, and surfing the Internet, all of which drain your time and energy? Take back your time and value it for the precious thing that it is, employing it for things that really matter.

Use your commuting time wisely. If you are within bicycle or walking distance of your work, get out of your car and exercise your way to work. Use car-pooling or public transportation instead of sitting in mind-numbing traffic with your hands gripping the steering wheel, using the time to read for pleasure, meditate to balance yourself, or organize your assignments so that your work day is more wisely spent.

Try not to concentrate on how busy you are, but rather concentrate on your results. After all, a frenzy of activity won't get you very far if you are shoveling sand with a pitchfork.

Use a "to do" list each day to help you prioritize the most important activities for that day. Next to each entry, assign a number from 1 to 5 with the highest priority being 1. Then re-draft your list so that the most important things are first, and the least important last. Then do them in order, from most important to least. Anything left at the end of the day gets put on tomorrow's list.

Balance is important. By being as efficient and productive in your free time as you are in your work time, you can get done what you need and want to do and still have time for starting new projects, learning new skills, and setting new goals to keep life interesting.

"If time be of all things the most precious, wasting time must be the greatest prodigality, since lost time is never found again." Well said, Mr. Franklin.

New business

Old Cuevas Bistro & Bakery celebrated its grand opening with a ribbon cutting ceremony on Wednesday, December 1. The restaurant is located at 5331 Menge Ave. (at the beginning of Red Creek Road) in Pass Christian. In attendance were owner Cassandra Timmons (in center, holding daughter, Sophia), Pass Christian Chamber president, Ken Austin, Marilyn Ladner and many others. Timmons' family is from the Mississippi Delta, and have all been involved with the renovation and re-establishing this historic site. According to a newspaper article from June 2, 1953, it was described as the Coast's oldest general store, which opened in 1851. The building also housed a post office in the 1890s, and was a trading hub for residents who came and went by boat on Bayou Portage. Timmons said the menu will have steaks and seafood, salads and sandwiches which will vary in cost from $5.95 to $22. Her bakery will feature pies, cakes, breads and pastries. Time-tested investment strategies for 2005 and beyond

As an investor, you've got a lot of questions. How will the markets do in 2005? Will the economy prosper? Where will interest rates go? These issues are not meaningless - but if you really want to work toward achieving long-term investment success, you'll look past short-term factors and follow some "time-tested" investment strategies.

Here are some techniques to consider:

Stick with your investment plan: If you adjust your investment plan, do it for the right reasons, such as a change in the long-term outlook for one of your investments or the realization that an investment no longer meets your goals.

Diversify and rebalance: By spreading your money among a variety of investments that may rise and fall at different times, you'll avoid taking those big "hits" that may affect just one asset class. You may also need to "rebalance" your holdings occasionally to make sure the percentages of your portfolio taken up by different assets still fit your risk tolerance and time horizon.

Reduce the size of an investment that's too large: If you put a large amount of money in a single stock, for example, you are taking a substantial risk. With the capital gains rate now at a maximum of just 15 percent, you have a good opportunity to sell off shares of a stock and help diversify your portfolio. Having too much in one investment is a risk that may not be worth taking.

Keep investing: Although past performance is no guarantee, over the long term, stocks have significantly outperformed all other asset classes. So, keep investing in high-quality stocks and don't get dissuaded by short-term "bumps" along the way.

Look for rising income opportunities: To boost your investment income, consider buying stocks that have historically increased their dividend payouts. And dividends are now even more attractive, because they are taxed at a maximum rate of just 15 percent. (Keep in mind, though, that stocks are not fixed-income investments and may not pay dividends.)

Don't forget "growth-and-income": Many investors are attracted to the potentially high returns of "growth" and "aggressive growth" stocks. But there's almost certainly a place in your portfolio for good, solid "growth-and-income" investments, which provide opportunities for capital appreciation and current income.

Limit exposure to risky investments: Be cautious about investing in emerging markets, "junk" bonds, technology stocks and commodities such as oil and gold. Before adding these volatile investments to your portfolio, consult with a financial professional who knows your needs and risk tolerance.

Build a "bond ladder": By building a "ladder" consisting of bonds of varying maturities, you can help to protect yourself in all interest-rate environments. When market rates are low, you'll have your high-rate, long-term bonds working for you. Then, if rates rise, you can reinvest the proceeds of your short-term bonds into new bonds issued at the higher rates.

Reinvest, reinvest, reinvest: If your investments generate dividends or interest that you don't need to meet monthly expenses, consider reinvesting that income to put the power of compounding to work.

Follow principles, not predictions: No one can predict with total accuracy what 2005 - or future years - will bring to the financial markets. So, stick with the investment principles that never go out of fashion, such as diversification, investing in quality and maintaining a long-term perspective.

By following these 10 basic strategies, you can help yourself make steady progress toward your future.

Boater's Top Ten New Year's Resolutions

To help boaters have even better boating experiences in 2005, the BoatUS Foundation for Boating Safety and Clean Water suggests these top ten New Year's resolutions that will make your boating safer, cleaner, and more rewarding for everyone aboard:

1. Teach a child or friend how to sail, or introduce them to boating. You can get them started by sending them to the Foundation's free online boating safety course at BoatUS.com/Foundation.

2. Check your flares, fire extinguisher and other safety equipment to be certain it's in good condition and up-to-date. The U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary and U.S. Power Squadrons offer free vessel safety checks that can help identify these or any other potential problems.

3. The next time you go fishing, experiment with circle hooks. These fish-saving hooks will save an angler's excitement of the catch for another day or perhaps even for your own child.

4. Familiarize yourself with an online weather service so it becomes a routine part of your predeparture planning. Knowing potential conditions before you go makes float planning easier.

5. Fuel up your boat without spilling a drop overboard this entire season and contain engine room drops and spills with bilge pads and socks. The cumulative effects of a little drop here and there can add up.

6. Purchase and wear an inflatable life jacket. Being comfortable in your life saving, personal flotation device means you will use it.

7. Tune your engine. An engine running at top performance can drastically reduce harmful exhaust or oil emissions and you'll get more miles to the gallon.

8. Set up some easy-to-identify, separate trash and recycling containers aboard.

A readily available disposal system helps everyone keep trash out of the water.

9. Save the alcohol for when you arrive safely back at the dock. The majority of all boating fatalities are alcohol related.

10. Make a donation to your favorite educational or marine conservation group. In doing so, you will make a positive difference for every boater in 2005 and gain a great sense of personal satisfaction. The BoatUS Foundation for Boating Safety and Clean Water is a national 501(c)(3) nonprofit education and research organization funded by recreational boaters nationwide. For more information visit BoatUS.com/Foundation. Happy New Year!

Lady Tigers dominate in Christmas Classic

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
Staff Writer

The Bay High Lady Tigers improved to 15-0 with their 75-35 win over Slidell in the Tiger Christmas Classic. The girls finished 2-0 in the two-day event while the boys team went 1-1.

The Lady Tigers held an 18-11 lead after the first period and took a commanding 39-18 advantage into the break.

Bay High Lady Tigers head coach Debbie Triplett stated, "The score did not indicate how hard Slidell pushed us tonight. They were a physical team and made us play hard. We will take some time off for the holidays and get back to work with four hard practices next week."

Tamara Reed led the Lady Tigers with 17 points followed by Kendra Reed with 16, Destiny Porter 15 and Sara Gilmore with 12 points.

The All-Tournament selections for the girls were Kendra Reed (Bay High), Tamara Reed (Bay High), Ariana Harrison (Slidell), Sarah Bolden (Slidell), Tysha Jarow (Redemption-Seton), Jackie Crier (Redemption-Seton), Vicky Denner (D'Iberville) and Krystle Evans (D'Iberville).

The Lady Tigers will be in action next on January 4th against the Pass Christian Lady Pirates in division action.

The Bay High Tigers (6-9) dropped their game with Salmen 57-45. It was a game that the Tigers knew they could get but were unable to protect the ball with costly turnovers.

Salmen held a slight 12-11 advantage after the first period but increased that spread to 34-22 by half-time.

In the second half, the Tigers cut the lead to nine points several times but could not get any closer. Bay High head coach Alan Lumpkin commented, "The turnovers tonight really hurt us. Salmen is a very talented team and very well-coached. I am not down on our effort or intensity because that is there. What concerns me is that we are a senior-laden team making some sophomore mistakes. We have to focus on curing those mistakes as we get into the meat of our division schedule. We will take a couple of days off for the holidays and then head to Covington next week to play three games against some very stiff competition." Braxton Rockwell led the Tigers with 15 points followed by Charles Nichols with 13 points. Darren Oliver led Salmen with 15 points followed by Jamari Payton with 14 and Jeremy Lewis with 12 points.

All-Tournament selections for the boys were Braxton Rockwell (Bay High), Robert Labat (Bay High), Jeffrey Lewis (Salmen), Darren Oliver (Salmen), Mike Ohpolaeze (Redemption-Seton), Emmanuel Odoms (Redemption-Seton), Julius Blanks (Gautier) and Alex Burkes (Gautier).

In second round action, Gautier defeated Redemption-Seton 60-52 and the D'Iberville Lady Warriors defeated Redemption-Seton 52-32.

In previous action at the Bay High Christmas tournament on Tuesday evening, the D'Iberville Lady Warriors defeated the Slidell girls 36-31 and Salmen of Slidell stopped the Gautier Gators 58-50 in boys competition.

Also, the Bay High Lady Tigers routed the Redemption-Seton Lady Rams 94-7 while the Tigers defeated the Rams 64-47 in boys action.

MHSAA realigns area schools for 2005-07 athletics

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
STAFF WRITER

Every two years the Mississippi High School Activities Association reviews each school's numbers and realigns the classification system that has been in effect since 1982. All area schools - Bay St. Louis, Hancock, Our Lady Academy, Pass Christian and St. Stanislaus - will remain in their current classification; however, the division in which they compete will change. With the division change also comes a change in opponents and travel.

The change is a welcomed one, especially at Hancock High School, which has had to travel to schools like Northwest Rankin, Natchez and Brandon for the past few years.

At any rate, the new alignment is one that favors Hancock in Class 5A. For one, it keeps the Hawks in close proximity to Kiln. Secondly, it pits the Hawks against some more familiar opponents than in recent years. In football for 2005-2007, the Hawks will be in the Coast region (Region 4) along with Biloxi, George County, Gulfport, Harrison Central, Moss Point, Ocean Springs and Pascagoula. In basketball for 2005-2007, Hancock will participate in Division 8 with Biloxi, Gulfport and Harrison Central.

Bay St. Louis, Pass Christian and St. Stanislaus will all remain in Class 4A and in Region 8; however, the opponents will be mixed up a bit. Along with the three area schools, the other member schools that will make up the region in football for 2005-2007 are Long Beach, Pearl River Central, Picayune and Poplarville. Long Beach and Picayune are moving down from Class 5A while Poplarville is moving up from Class 3A. Pearl River Central is currently a 4A school but competes in Region 7. The schools will also comprise Division 8 in basketball and baseball for 2005-2007.

OLA will remain a Class 3A school and will compete in Division 8 in basketball for 2005-2007 with Collins, Greene County, Magee, Prentiss, Purvis, Raleigh and Sumrall.

Beware of frostbite

BY JAMES L. CUMMINS

In this column, Dr. Bill McKell provides some very useful advice on hypothermia and frostbite. "The symptoms of hypothermia (defined as a body temperature of less than 95°F) are nonspecific - altered mental status, slurred speech, impaired gait and unexplained lethargy are to name a few."

McKell states that shivering might be a valuable clue, but hypothermic individuals whose body temperature is lower than 90°F (most thermometers for human use don't register below 94°F) may not shiver or even feel cold. The victim may appear corpse-like due to the pale color of his or her skin, lack of spontaneous motion and an imperceptible pulse.

McKell presently recommends the following approaches in the field: 1) Wet clothing should be removed and further heat loss prevented by the use of blankets, hot water bottles, heated rocks wrapped in clothing or radiant heat from another person. 2) Motion of the victim must be limited and any movement performed gently; catastrophe has occurred immediately after exertion or even passive movement, probably as a result of cold, acidotic blood moving from the periphery to the core. 3) Chest compressions (CPR) should not be initiated in the field if there is any detectable movement, pulse (check neck or groin rather than wrist), or cardiac rhythm. 4) Hot drinks, especially brandy and other alcoholic beverages, have been used for centuries to treat people suffering from cold; they may magnify further heat loss by promoting inappropriate dilatation of the superficial blood vessels, and therefore should be avoided.

The goal should be to get the victim evaluated in a hospital as soon as possible, for the potential of complications are many and some are potentially fatal.

Old Town Merchants celebrate the season

On Monday, Dec. 13, the Old Town Merchants Association held its annual Christmas party at the Palm House Bed And Breakfast, 217 Union St.

Many of the merchants shared good food, excellent company and enjoyed touring the house and admiring the beautiful decorations. During the course of the evening, Sally Baker, president of the association, called for the attention of all attending to Richie Zitzmann, chairman of the decorations committee could present plaques to the winners.

Zitzmann thanked all of the merchants who participated and said that the judges had a very difficult time reaching a decision in each category as there were so many outstanding entries. There were three categories and a different set of judges were assigned to each category. The judges were local business people, but not owners of retail shops in Old Town.

Richie, Sally and B&B owners Margie and Reg

Morken all stated that Bay St. Louis had never looked more beautiful at Christmas time. The merchants attending the party certainly agreed with the observation. Many of the merchants are looking forward to next year's competition, as the contest will again be held in 2005.

The winner of the award for Best Door went to Carruth-Walker Galleries located at 102 Blaize Ave. the Best Window plaque was given to Chessy's located at 110 S. Beach Blvd. and the Best Store Front award was presented to Charbonnet & Charbonnet Antiques at 216 Main St.

The plaques will be displayed by the winners until Dec. 2005 when they will then be passed on to the new winners.

The Old Town Merchants Association invites all of the residents and visitors to take a ride to Old Town and enjoy the decorations and also enjoy shopping with our local merchants.

Lighting gives a warm welcome

Central Mississippi Research & Extension Center

The time change is one of the few times of the year I always dread. I don't mind getting up to sunshine, but I really dislike coming home to dark.

If you are like me, probably we both could use a little landscape lighting to welcome us home as we pull in the drive. After mulch, lighting is the perfect finishing touch to landscaping. Lighting can really make a dramatic impact in the landscape, especially when featuring the old oak, water pond or flower garden.

Lighting accents what we deem to be the most important features in the landscape. On the other hand, we can keep in the dark those things we wish weren't there or that happen to be less attractive.

When we use lighting to accent special features, we don't want to light it up like Yankee Stadium. Lighting should merely call attention to the object.

In addition to being a welcome-home beacon, lights also serve a safety and security purpose for visitors and homeowners. They give definition to the sidewalk and steps so people won't stumble. By illuminating your landscape, you deter prowlers and other undesirable visitors. Automatic clocks allow you to set the lighting to come on at any time, even when you are away.

If daylight-savings time does not do enough for your outdoor activities, lighting can. You would never dream what the light by the basketball goal does at our home. It allows us to play until the neighbors get annoyed.

You can lengthen those few days that are warm this time of the year, allowing for playing or cook-outs. In the summertime heat, lighting can let you enjoy the outdoors at night when the weather cools.

I guess the thing I like most about landscape lighting is that it creates different moods. Lighting around the pool or patio can create that tropical feeling of being at the Hyatt in Waikiki.

Today's landscape lamps themselves can be an attractive garden feature during the daytime. These lamps may be made of brass, copper or glass.

If you are using a do-it-yourself kit, by all means follow the directions explicitly. You will have done little good at lighting an area if you also give someone a shock in wet weather.

Put the electrical line in PVC pipe underneath the ground. You will be surprised what rodents find delectable.

Experiment with the lights and their intensities before making a permanent decision. If you have large trees in the back or at the side of the house, you can create some very interesting effects.

Try to make your system look natural. I'm sure that many low-flying planes look down on landscapes that look like miniature versions of the Atlanta airport. In other words, try to avoid straight lines, instead lighting hidden coves or pockets.

I have had great luck with do-it-yourself kits, although indulging in the luxury of having professionals do the job is really nice. I have used solar-powered lights and gotten much better performance than I had expected, so let your pocketbook dictate your lighting project.

When you pull in the driveway that first night, you'll have a new attitude.

Miracles happen, Jason is proof

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
STAFF WRITER

Three-year-old Jason Shepetis loves to look at the lights on his family's Christmas tree. He also loves the lighted play aquarium that sits on a dresser in his room, and listening to drumming sounds on his sound board. Not the usual activities for what should be an active toddler.

But Jason's parents, Kammy and Jon, think these accomplishments are nothing short of a miracle. Especially since they were advised to make funeral arrangements for their son soon after his birth in August of 2001.

Within 24 hours of his birth, Jason had contracted a rare and particularly virulent form of plesiomonas shigelloides meningitis, a bacteria that literally ate his brain leaving him with nothing but the brain stem. Doctors told Kammy and Jon that the deadly water-borne bacteria had likely been passed to the baby at birth.

How Kammy had picked up the bug remains an unknown, but the Shepetis' thought then, and still think, that the source of the bacteria was their shallow well, the only water supply for the home. The Shepetis live on Edward's Bayou near the Jourdan River. The first question doctors asked, Kammy said, was whether they lived near a marsh.

Jason's graduation from Project Prints, an early intervention program for preemies or children born with severe birth defects.

The area still has no water system.

Since that horrible day when the family watched their hopes and dreams for their son fade away, they have learned a lot about Jason's condition. For one thing, there are hundreds of children like Jason throughout the world, Kammy said, some who have lived into their teens.

She is now a member of a support group for parents who have children like Jason. The group tries to meet once a year. Last year they all went to Disney World in Orlando. Families came from as far away as Scotland. The group has opened up a whole new world for Kammy. She no longer feels that the family is facing the challenges alone.

"I can emphasize enough the importance of having a support group," said Kammy. "Even if only on the Internet, I am on line 600 times a day. At first it was to talk about my fears and to find some answers, but now

I can also offer some answers to others. I still have days when I sit and cry, but I have learned to concentrate the little blessings each day."

The family recently began an addition on their house to give Jason more space and a place to spend quiet time when needed. Unfortunately for the family the contractor only partially finished the job, taking a large draw for materials and never coming back.

These days Jason spends much of his waking hours with his nurse Althea Vontoure. Vontoure has been with the family since Jason was four months old. She comes to the house each day, seven days a week, except for an occasional break. Vontoure recently lost her husband William, who she said had a special bond with Jason.

William loved Jason, Althea said, and admired him. He would say, "here is this baby struggling to live when there are so many people just throwing their lives away." Althea finds life with the little boy very rewarding, she says, and "feels blessed that God has given me the ability to meet his needs and make a difference."

Though many doctors have told Kammy that Jason's reactions are merely automatic, Kammy and Althea say they know different.

"We have seen him learn," said Althea.

Of course, Jason's accomplishments may seem small to outsiders. A movement of the arms or legs, a turning of the head toward a sound, a raspy breathing sound when he wants or needs attention, and a cough when he needs his diaper changed may not seem like much. But to Althea and the family they are miracles.

"In many ways Jason is the perfect child," said Kammy. "He just gives and receives love."

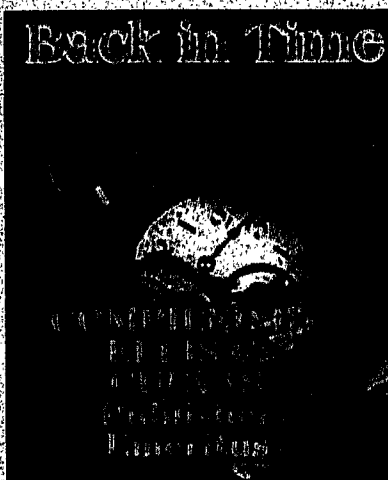

Kammy Shepetis, left and nurse Althea Vontoure with Jason. Althea has cared for Jason since he was four months old. The women say he is a miracle.

December 22, 1994 - Bay St. Louis City Council faced an angry, determined crowd Tuesday night, as controversy boiled over concerning planned closings of residential street/railroad crossings. We're not free citizens of we are going to allow them to divide our town," said Ballentine Street resident Vera Carver, urging council to stop plans to close the Ballentine's crossing of the tracks. "Please help us out and don't do this to us." She was joined by other Ballentine and Citizen Streets residents who seemed appalled to learn their streets up for division at the tracks. Despite explanations of the Council, the crowd dispersed as angry as ever, promising to take their fight to every state and federal who will listen.

December 23, 1984 - The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors has voted to endorse the continuance of the Gulf Coast Limited through September 20, and will assist the Louisiana-Mississippi Rapid Rail Commission in urging the Mississippi Legislature to join. This action followed the board's meeting Tuesday night, at which pros and cons of funding the train were addressed by commission representative Delmar Wilcox and Joseph Colson, a local resident who opposes the endorsement. "The board feels that the Gulf Coast Limited should at least be given an opportunity to continue," said John Mason, Chamber president, "and that a schedule change should also be provided to allow New Orleans visitors to come earlier on Fridays and leave on Monday morning."

Students selected for company's youth leadership program

Cree Cantrell, Mercy Cross High School, Crista Hartenstein, Picayune Memorial High School and Anastasia Kalina, Biloxi High School were selected to represent Coast Electric to participate in the Electric Power Associations of Mississippi Youth Leadership Program to be held in Jackson on March 2-4. The Association takes part in the statewide youth leadership program to better acquaint the future leaders of our communities with cooperative philosophy.

The students were chosen based on essays explaining their views of how important a cooperative business is in today's society. Finalists were selected based on the essays. Personal interviews were conducted to choose the final three.

At the three day workshop, the students will learn many aspects of leadership, participate in team-building exercises, hear presentations given by government leaders and attend sessions held by the state government at the capitol building.

Coast Electric is a not-for-profit member owned electric cooperative serving more than 68,000 members on over 5,900 miles of line.

Merry Christmas from the Faculty and Staff of Bay Catholic Elementary.

During season of giving, parents make gift of lifetime to UM in memory of son

Despite being physically challenged, Mike Carmichael lived a remarkable life, graduating from the University of Mississippi in 1980 then spending his remaining years helping others.

After their son's death in 1989 due to a heart condition, Charles and Sally Carmichael of Jackson established the Mike Carmichael Memorial Scholarship Endowment at UM to provide academic scholarships for physically challenged students. The couple recently added $200,000 to the endowment. "Ole Miss played a significant role in Mike's life," said Charles Carmichael. "We are grateful to Ole Miss for providing him with an excellent education and for preparing him to take full advantage of his capabilities while at the university and in his later life. This support enabled Mike to achieve every goal he set for himself, though reaching some of these goals was not thought possible. Mike loved his four years at Ole Miss, and he was a very enthusiastic Rebel."

Expressing appreciation to the Carmichaels, UM Chancellor Robert Khayat said, "We are grateful to Charles and Sally Carmichael for their generosity, which will help the University of Mississippi to follow through on our commitment to open doors of opportunity for all students. This scholarship points to the example of their son, Mike, as an inspiration to others, and it exemplifies the vital connection between caring people and public education."

Active in school and campus affairs at Ole Miss, Carmichael was elected to the Associated Student Body Senate in 1979. He was a member of the Rebel Club and Committee of 100 and served as a Kincannon Hall representative.

In appreciation for what Ole Miss and others did to help him, Mike devoted much of his later life to helping others, said his father. He was a volunteer with missions of First Baptist Church in Jackson, Youth for Christ, Goodwill Industries, Mississippi Symphony Orchestra and charity fund-raising events.

George Everett, UM professor emeritus, remembers the courageous young man. "Mike was one of the warmest kids I ever knew," Everett said. "He was a fighter and an inspiration to all who knew him. He wanted to be treated like everybody else with no extra breaks."

"Mike's devotion to Ole Miss makes this gift a perfect way for us to pay tribute to his life," said Sally Carmichael. "We hope this will encourage others to memorialize or honor an Ole Miss alumnus by helping physically challenged students receive the lifelong benefits of a university education."

The Carmichaels have funded the endowment through a Charitable Remainder Unitrust. In doing so, they become members of the University of Mississippi Foundation's 1848 Society, which provides lifetime recognition to those who participate in planned giving to the university.

"We are truly grateful Mr. and Mrs. Carmichael chose this unique vehicle for giving, which enabled them to provide such a tremendous level of support to the university in memory of their son, Mike," said Sandra Guest, director of University Advancement. "By providing the gift during their lifetimes, they are assured that the Mike Carmichael endowment will impact young people forever at the university he loved so much. What a wonderful tribute."

love our cooks

Members of the food service staff at Hancock Middle School, top photo at left, were the recipients of hand painted aprons recently. The parents and students presented the aprons to the ladies in appreciation for all they do. The cafeteria staff serves a healthy meal daily but surpasses the nutritional well being of the children by supporting the students in other ways. During state and national testing dates, the staff makes "brain-food" snacks. They made and decorated many cakes for the school's accreditation celebration. They also held a drawing for a bicycle give away. The serving line decorations are transformed with each season to bring smiles to the student's faces. Because of their love and dedication, the students wanted them to always be aware of their gratitude by giving each staff member a "We Love Our Cook" apron.

EHE gives to the community

Heather Dedeaux, a counselor at East Hancock Elementary, fills a basket with toys and clothes with the help of some students, bottom photo at left. The items were purchased with the money raised through the school's annual "Coins for Christmas" campaign. This year the students brought in $3,200.00 worth of coins. In addition to the coin drive the school has given $400.00 to Hope Haven by funds earned in a student council sponsored "Hat Day" and through an award from Kelly Services that made a donation to the charity in honor of East Hancock. The recent monetary donations and the school's 4,546 food item donation to the county food pantry in November make East Hancock Elementary a school that continues to give to their community.

God Is Our Refuge and Strength

Being a religious, God-fearing person does not mean that our lives will be trouble-free. Recently, I was talking to a woman who was somewhat upset because, despite her support and attendance at church each week, she still had so many problems. It is important to understand that just praying, going to church or reading the Bible will not help us unless we are transformed into a better person. Also, becoming more spiritual does not mean that our problems or life's issues will be lessened, nor even any easier to deal with. We should realize that there is really little security here on earth. Material things usually provide only short-term happiness or stability. God's security is forever, and knowing that He cares about us should help us to better accept our various ordeals. Our Lord had to bear His cross, and we too will have crosses to bear in our daily lives. We can find consolation in the Bible, where God tells us that He is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble (Psalm 46:1). We never have to face our problems alone, because God is always with us, and He will never abandon us. Improving our relationship with our Heavenly Father and focusing on His many blessings will help us to more readily accept our trials and realize how much God loves us.

Call upon Me in the day of trouble; I will deliver you, and you shall glorify Me.

-R.S.V. Psalm 50:15

Happy New Year

"Happy New Year!" will be on the lips of each one of us as the old year 2004 passes into the new year 2005. Since all of us suffer from adult attention deficit disorder (AADD) in some items of our lives, it behooves us to be reminded what we are saying.

First of all, it is the height of presumption to assume that any of us will be around at the end of 2005. "Happy New Year!" is too big a gulp. But so is half a year, one month or even a week. Frankly, tomorrow is more than we have any assurance for surviving.

Sure, we can hazard what seems to be a safe bet that practically all the newborn, most children and the vast majority of young adults will be around for 2006. Don't mortgage the house on that bet. At best, as we well know, it is still a crapshoot as to who will live.

As usual, this year has once more proven to be a stern reminder that death is not the exclusive province of the aged, but also of the middle-aged and even the young. Many of the funerals I have conducted or attended this year involved people much younger than I.

The longer we live, the more frequently we are alarmed at contemporaries, give or take a few years, who are dropping around us and checking out for entry into our Father's kingdom. To put it bluntly, it forces us to count the days which may be remaining for us.

Our perspective in counting our days shifts radically as we move into the midst of Psalm 90's allotment of our days: "The sum of our years is 70; if we are strong, 80." The count gets shorter and shorter until, all of a sudden, it sputters and stops.

Even while typing this, I answered the doorbell. The young man standing there had a delivery for me, joyfully identifying himself as an alumnus of Xavier University where we knew each other. He spoke proudly of his grown children, then added with a smile:

"I'm 53 now. I can start thinking of retiring."

Younger adults speak blithely, even longingly, about retirement and the blessed days of leisure and recreation soon to follow. Those days may be blessed, but they are far from endless, unfortunately. If our transit from childhood through our years of work is brief to the point of bewilderment, how much swifter will our short years of retirement be?

Yes, we are constantly biting off more than we can chew. Worse, we are attempting to bite off something we do not even know we have in the way of days, let alone years. We assume blindly that we have X amount of time to bargain with in our lives.

"Happy New Year!" sounds wonderful, but it is at most an expression of wishful hope that we can and will survive the next 365 days. We know for a cold fact that some of the eyes we are gazing into on New Year's Day will soon be permanently shut.

When it will be our turn, none of us know. However, that is no cause for sadness or depression. It is simply a fact of life that we take turns leaving this earth. Meanwhile, we have a whole world; even a universe, to admire and enjoy each day, every hour.

More importantly, we have people, particularly our beloved family members, and to hold as precious gifts of God. These relatives are the most basic stuff of which our lives are made, so that we are able to appreciate each day because of them. Our main hardship concerning our kith and kin is final separation due to the inevitability of death.

Well, our dear friends are next in line as God's special gifts to us. Despite all the irony of "Happy New Year!" and the certainty that some of us will not survive the whole of 2005, the gift of relatives and friends makes even shortened lives a true blessing.

"Happy New Year" is really a cool, pleasing way of greeting our relatives and friends at the beginning of each year, in spite of the fact that we are engaging in overbite when we dare to wish each other the very best God has to give during the next 12 months.

We must only beware not to be caught up in the illusion that everyone who says

"Happy New Year!" is destined to survive until the following year. Intoxicated we may be by some elements of life, but we had better be sober enough to know better than that.

Following hot on the heels of the emotional, joyous Christmas carols, the bitter-sweet melancholy of Auld Lang Syne, bearing decades of deep-seated, treasured memories of family gatherings and celebrations, pierces our innermost feelings and longings.

Most of us have childhood memories of humongous gatherings of family and friends at Christmas time and on New Year's Eve. With people overflowing the family house, the very yard was hard put to contain the talkative, laughing, celebrating throng.

Alternating between the silky-sweet strains of Auld Lang Syne and "Happy New Year" punctuated by fireworks, the numerous celebrants created a humming, beehive effect with their talk, their singing, their exchange of greetings and their laughter.

The very memory of this huge family phenomenon had such an intoxicating, indelible effect on our minds that there is nothing comparable to it down to this very day. It is no wonder, then, that we feel such emptiness and deprivation as the irrepressible attrition of terminal illness and death trims the throng of our relatives and friends down to a handful.

"Happy New Year!" carries with it all the sweet memories of happy times with large gatherings of relatives and friends. Likewise, it brings with it the heavy baggage of the trying times of sickness and final separation. Small wonder that the lyrics and strains of Auld Lang Syne are at once so sweet and so very melancholy.

All this notwithstanding, the bitter-sweet memories of the holidays/holidays are very indicative of many blessings deep inset into our culture, heritage and family history. We are so very blessed in the family members and friends we once had on earth through the grace of God, and we will be thrice blessed to enjoy them again in our Father's kingdom.

There remains only for us to minimize "Happy New Year!" by exploiting and enjoying each single day as God gives it to us. "Happy New Day!" every day.

Reflections on Life

Rev. Johnson offers Pastoral Counseling

The Rev. Dr. Arthur Johnson, former Rector of Christ Episcopal Church, Bay St. Louis, continues his ministry with the establishment of the Stedfaest Center for Pastoral Psychotherapy through the Episcopal Church of the Redeemer in Biloxi.

Pastoral Counseling differs from many other offerings of the church in that it is fee based. Religious communities are one of the principal gateways for individuals seeking assistance with depression, grief, marital and couples conflict, substance abuse, family violence, juvenile delinquency and AIDS, among other problems. However, most pastors have neither the time nor the training in psychotherapy to do extensive, in-depth work with their parishioners. If a situation or crisis requires more than a few informal sessions, it is time to see a certified pastoral counselor.

Dr. Johnson received his doctoral degree jointly from the University of the South in Sewanee, Tennessee and Vanderbilt University, Nashville. He served internships at Duke University Medical Center in Durham, North Carolina and the Protestant Children's Home in San Antonio, Texas. His residency took place at Georgia Regional Hospital at Augusta and at nearby Gracewood State School and Hospital. He is a Fellow in the American Association of Pastoral Counselors.

The work of Pastoral Counseling is a specialized ministry of the church and is certified by the American Association of Pastoral Counselors. These professionals are trained in the mainstream of clinical psychotherapy, as are psychiatrists, clinical social workers and psychologists. While Rector of Christ Episcopal Church in Bay St. Louis, Dr. Johnson presided over many changes in the congregation and life of the parish. The consolidation of Coast Episcopal School on their own main campus was a loss for the Bay-Waveland community, but the property and buildings were put to good use for the Bay-Waveland Alternative School by a parish desiring to help youth one way or another. Dr. Johnson's work there also included Pastoral Counseling offered to people beyond the parish.

Dr. Johnson can be contacted at Stedfaest Center through the Church of the Redeemer at 228-436-3123, at his Bay St. Louis location, 228-467-2254 or by e-mail, www.StedfaestCtr@aol.com.

The "Word" for the Week

Dennis J. Prutow • Box 303, Sterling, KS 66759

Your growth through the Bible

A little gal we knew was not growing properly. Her legs were too short! A certain doctor took a look at her and immediately knew the problem. It was a heart problem! Adequate blood was not getting to her legs. Improper physical growth was evidence of this physical heart. In the same way, improper spiritual growth is evidence of a spiritual problem. You see, growth is an absolutely necessary part of the Christian life! The Biblical word referring to growth is sanctification. The Bible says, "Pursue peace with all men, and the sanctification, without which no one will see the Lord" (Hebrews 12:14). People who call themselves Christians and do not grow in a spiritual way are fooling themselves. Without this growth, they will not see the Lord. Why? Spiritual growth is an evidence of spiritual life! It is evidence the Holy Spirit is living in you. But if the Holy Spirit does not live in you, you are not a Christian! The Bible is clear. "If anyone does not have the Spirit of Christ, he does not belong to Him" (Romans 8:9). How does growth come about? Listen to the apostle Paul, "I commend you to God and to the word of His grace, which is able to build you up and to give you the inheritance among all those who are sanctified" (Acts 20:32). When Paul speaks about the word of God, he means the Scriptures of the Bible! Other books may claim to be Scripture. Only the Word of God in the Bible is able to build you up and to give you the inheritance of heaven! So this year, if you want to grow, you need to read the Bible! Read five or six pages every day and you can read through the Bible in a year!

Artwork winners announced for 2005 DMR calendar

The Mississippi Department of Marine Resources (DMR) has announced the winners of the "Preserving and Enjoying Mississippi's Coastal Resources" 2005 Marine Information Calendar art contest.

In an effort to generate an interest in and promote the awareness of the value of our coastal resources, the DMR held an art contest for fifth- and sixth-grade students in Hancock, Harrison and Jackson counties. Students were asked to create artwork illustrating the contest theme: "Preserving and Enjoying Mississippi's Coastal Resources." The DMR received more than 200 entries from schools in the three coastal counties. The winning artwork appears in the 2005 calendar.

"The student artwork featured in this calendar shows a genuine appreciation of our coastal resources and an understanding of the importance of wise stewardship," said DMR Executive Director William Walker. "That awareness is a tribute—not only to the excellent schools and dedicated teachers that these students represent—but also to the educational efforts of the department, the J.L. Scott Marine Education Center and all the many other organizations that work toward increased community education and heightened public awareness of our valuable marine resources."

Winners of the calendar art contest are:

The artwork of Taylor Tripp of Our Lady of Fatima School is featured for the month of January and on the front cover of the calendar.

The artwork of Brandon Farmer of Anniston Avenue Elementary School is featured for the month of February.

The artwork of Austin Herold of Bayou View Elementary School is featured for the month of March.

The artwork of Vincent Nguyen of D'Iberville Middle School is featured for the month of April.

The artwork of Nicholas Myrick of Coast Episcopal School is featured for the month of May.

The artwork of Sara Lydia Tuell of Coast Episcopal School is featured for the month of September.

Harriel as elementary principal for the system. Magee, who has been administrative assistant for transportation, will continue those duties as well as teaching in his new post. He has been with the system about eight years. Pay for the post was fixed at $6,500 a year.

SIXTY YEARS AGO

December 22, 1944 - Mr. and Mrs. Forest L. Luc of this city was notified on Saturday by the War Department that their son, Forrest Luc, Jr., had been killed in action in France on November 30. Pfc Luc was a native of this city and was 26 years of age. He attended Bay High and entered service Nov. 12, 1942. His brother Sgt. Leroy Luc who is now in Holland had not seen Pfc Luc in three years but was in France and they met shortly after arriving there. Besides his parents he leaves four sisters, Mrs. Harry Ward, New Orleans; Mrs. W.L. Jones of North Carolina; Miss Edith Luc and Alina Luc, Bay St. Louis, two brothers, Foster Luc, Bay St. Louis and Sgt. Leroy Luc, overseas. His mother was the former Miss Edwina Ladner.

ONE HUNDRED-TWELVE YEARS AGO

December 17, 1892 - Bay St. Louis is not backward in no way. Our city is slowly but constantly improving, and now comes the front with her water works. We notice that Mr. Sanger has been extending his water works system down to Bookter Avenue this week.

-Bob Fitzsimmons will train in Bay St. Louis for his coming mill (fight). The Bay seems to be Fitz's mascot and he will always stick to it.

-The Bay is receiving its share of Northern visitors. New faces can be seen on our streets almost every day.

Sharks 3D on Giant Screen in N.O.

Entergy IMAX® Theatre showcases the "Lions and Tigers of the Sea".

Are they the terrifying creatures of horror film fame or simply misunderstood animals that happen to reside at the top of the marine food chain? Visitors to Entergy IMAX® Theatre on the New Orleans riverfront have a chance to find out more about the ultimate predator with the premiere of SHARKS 3D. Beginning January 1, 2005 moviegoers will come face to face with a multitude of the world's great shark species, including the Great White, Whale Shark, and Hammerhead. SHARKS 3D gives viewers the thrill of experiencing sharks as they truly are in their natural habitat: not wicked man-eating creatures, but wild, fascinating, and highly endangered animals.

SHARKS 3D will take you to places like Malpelo Island in Colombia; Australia's Osprey Reef, the Bahamas, and Mozambique, to show how important sharks are to the survival of the world's oceans. This film has a strong conservation message and viewers will learn what can be done to help stop the declining shark populations throughout the world. Within the last decade, some species of shark have already disappeared up to 80%, posing a serious threat on the whole marine ecosystem.

Entergy IMAX® Theatre brings SHARKS 3D to life in giant fashion. The theatre features a huge five-and-a-half story tall silver screen, 354 stadium-style seats, and a digital sound system with 12,000 watts of sound. Presented by famed ocean explorer and environmentalist Jean-Michel Cousteau, SHARKS 3D is an unforgettable look at animals that were around millions of years before dinosaurs.

SHARKS 3D will thrill visitors four times each day at Entergy IMAX® Theatre. Other exciting films showing on the giant screen are Volcanoes of the Deep Sea, Ocean Wonderland 3D, The Living Sea, and Into the Deep 3D. Tickets are $8.00 for adults, $5.00 for children ages 2-12, and $7.00 for seniors ages 65+. Audubon Nature Institute members receive a $2.00 discount per ticket. Advance tickets are recommended and can be purchased by calling (504) 581-IMAX or 1-800-774-7394 or visit us online at auduboninstitute.org. After seeing the sharks on the large screen, visitors can see sharks in real life next door at Audubon Aquarium of the Americas. Money-saving combination tickets for both experiences are available. Up to four hours discounted parking is available at the Hilton New Orleans

Riverside's "Whale Lot," Hilton Garage, World Trade Center on Convention Center Boulevard.

PBS documentary explores case of lesbian cleric Stroud

By John Crook
© Zap2it

Members of a progressive Philadelphia church grapple with social pressures from both inside and out after their associate minister announces she is a lesbian in "The Congregation," a timely documentary premiering Wednesday, Dec. 29, on most PBS stations (check local listings).

The two-hour film goes behind the scenes at the First United Methodist Church of Germantown, a racially mixed urban church with a history of commitment to social justice. Filmmakers Alan and Susan Raymond spent two years filming the church and its members during a period of upheaval that began with the arrival of a new minister who divided the dwindling membership with his style of leadership, which included a perceived shift to a more conservative ministry.

The real lightning rod for public debate, however, emerged in the person of the associate pastor, the Rev. Beth Stroud, who disclosed in an April 2003 sermon that she was a lesbian.

"More than anyone else in my life, Chris embodies grace and love and discipleship for me," Stroud said of her life partner, Chris Paige, in that sermon. "Because of my relationship with her, I am a better, more faithful Christian."

Although members of the Germantown congregation offered what amounted to their full support, Stroud's candor put her at odds with the United Methodist Book of Discipline, which forbids self-avowed practicing homosexuals from being ordained or appointed as clergy to its churches.

Following a headline-grabbing church trial, on Dec. 3, a 13-member jury of her peers voted 12-1 that Stroud had "engaged in practices incompatible with Christian teachings" and, in a subsequent and evidently painful penalty hearing, voted 7-6 to revoke her ministerial credentials.

"The Congregation" ends before either of those verdicts is reached, but during a time in American social history when religion is being exploited as a divisive political tool, this gripping documentary focuses on good people on both sides of a difficult debate.

Celebrity Scoop

Jesse Metcalfe grows new fans

Jesse Metcalfe

By Kate O'Hare
© Zap2it

After steaming up daytime airwaves on NBC's soap opera "Passions," Jesse Metcalfe has switched the smolder to Sunday prime time as gardener John Rowland on ABC's "Desperate Housewives."

High schooler John has been embroiled in a hot and heavy affair with his married employer, Gabrielle Solis (Eva Longoria) - whom he refers to as "Mrs. Solis," even in bed. But of late, John has become increasingly disenchanted with sneaking around behind the back of Mr. Solis (Ricardo Antonio Chavira).

"He's not a complete boy toy," Metcalfe says. "He has a brain in his head. He's just young."

John also has a budding romance with Danielle Van De Camp (Joy Lauren), the daughter of the Solises' neighbors.

"They're dating a little bit," Metcalfe says, "but it's not that serious. He can't really get Gabrielle off his mind, for better or worse - mostly worse. It's love."

The role has made Metcalfe the recipient of some unusual comments when he's out in public. "The guys want to know what it's like to kiss Eva," he says. "A lot of the more middle-aged women are coming up to me with cheesy comments like, 'I got a lawn that needs mowing, a shrub that needs tending to.'"

Metcalfe reveals, though, that shooting love scenes with the beautiful Longoria isn't exactly a romantic experience.

"We're good friends," he says, "so that makes doing those intimate scenes a lot easier. But it's not nearly as sexy and glamorous (as it looks)."

"The scenes are pretty technical; that's a good word for it. There are 15 people on set, lights bright in your face. I've got the flesh-colored Speedo on; she's got the flesh-colored thong with the pasties. You have to strategically place the pillows and blankets to cover the unmentionables, and you go through the motions."

Born: Carmel Valley, Calif., on Dec. 9, 1978, and raised in Waterford, Conn.

Sports cred: Metcalfe roots for the New York Knicks, New England Patriots and New York Yankees. He also plays for the Hollywood Knights celebrity basketball team, and he snowboards.

School cred: Metcalfe graduated from New York University's Tisch School of the Arts before heading off to model in the United States and Europe.

Creative cred: Aside from acting, Metcalfe is also a music lover and accomplished guitarist.

Soap cred: Metcalfe spent four years on the NBC soap "Passions," as Miguel Lopez-Fitzgerald.

"NFL Football" Monday, Dec. 27

(ABC, 9 p.m. ET): In a mediocre NFC West, the Rams find themselves sitting firmly on the playoff bubble, so tonight's clash with the Eagles - the team with the conference's best record - may actually be a blessing for them. Donovan McNabb and the Eagles clinched a playoff berth weeks ago, so they'll likely be viewing this game as a postseason tuneup. That suits Marc Bulger and the Rams just fine, as they'll take any victory they can get - even if it's against a team that's saving itself for the playoffs.

"NBA Basketball" Thursday, Dec. 30 (TNT, 8 p.m. ET): The Heat and Pistons didn't exactly hold a shooting clinic when they last met on Nov. 26. In that game, a 78-77 Pistons win at The Palace at Auburn Hills, the defending champs shot at a 32.5 percent clip while the Heat fared only slightly better at 37.5 percent. It was decided when Detroit's Richard Hamilton caught an in-bounds pass under the basket and sank a bank shot with 1.3 seconds remaining.

"NBA Basketball" Thursday, Dec. 30 (TNT, 10:30 p.m. ET): A running game and a tough defense have gotten the Spurs off to their best start in franchise history, a 16-3 record as of early December. As usual, steady big man Tim Duncan has led the Spurs, averaging nearly 23 points and 13 rebounds per game. The Trail Blazers have gotten off to a .500 start, which would make them a first-place team in some divisions in the East, but in a tough Northwest, they're nearly cellar dwellers.

Steven Jackson and the St. Louis Rams take on the Philadelphia Eagles Monday on ABC.

If you know where to look, TV can teach some valuable lessons

By Jay Bobbin, John Crook and Kate O'Hare

During their history, television sets have been maligned as "idiot boxes" luring viewers into a "vast wasteland" of banality.

While many of those critics may have a point, however, there are a few life lessons and other choice random tidbits of information to be gleaned from the world of television — especially if you look at it from a slightly cockeyed perspective with tongue tucked firmly in cheek.

For example, you may not know: A well-built wooden toy chest will almost invariably float, no matter what you put inside it. Or whom. ("Desperate Housewives," ABC)

Adjusted for inflation, gasoline prices actually were much higher in 1981 than they are today. ("The West Wing," NBC)

Under no circumstances use the phrase, "After all, how bad could one day be?" ("24," Fox)

Once you've dallied with multihued extraterrestrial beauties as the captain of a futuristic starship, it's no great acting stretch to play the wildly eccentric senior partner of a Boston law firm. ("Boston Legal," ABC)

When debating the best breed of dog for your family, give serious consideration to a yellow Labrador. These puppies can sail through a devastating airline disaster with nary a scratch. ("Lost," ABC)

Never, ever mess with The Nania. ("The O.C.," Fox)

Always stay on the good side of your significant other. He or she may have to eat rancid yak butter for you one day. ("The Amazing Race," CBS)

Learn to run like the wind in stiletto heels so you can take out today's new breed of terrorist who just looooooves to crash chic cocktail parties. ("Alias," ABC)

Blackmail notes should always be written on a standard legal pad or other generic-style paper. ("Desperate Housewives," ABC)

Even if God literally answers your questions, there's no guarantee your problems will be solved or life will appear any less baffling at times. ("Joan of Arcadia," CBS)

In almost any life situation, secret alliances against others will bite you in the behind every time. ("Survivor," CBS)

People shed. ("CSI: Crime Scene Investigation," CBS)

Shaving against the grain of your beard takes a severe toll on your face. ("Queer Eye for the Straight Guy," Bravo)

No one really vanishes without a trace. ("Without a Trace," CBS)

Contrary to popular belief, hair does not continue to grow after death. The skin of the corpse contracts, expelling the hair follicles. ("CSI: Crime Scene Investigation")

If you find yourself running into a homeless Hungarian composer no one else can see, you might want to seek counseling. Especially if you are a psychiatrist yourself. ("HUFF," Showtime)

It is entirely possible for two boys to grow up in the same tiny Southern town and attend the same schools for years without either of them knowing they share a father, although the attendant scandal is common knowledge throughout their community. ("One Tree Hill," The WB Network)

Always, always, always allow sufficient time to make your connecting flight. ("The Amazing Race")

The U.S. federal government has a Department of Metaphor overseen by Marg Helgenberger and William Petersen star in "CSI: Crime Scene Investigation" Thursdays on CBS.

the Undersecretary of Whimsy and Caprice. ("The West Wing")

When absolutely nothing else will do, say it with propane. ("King of the Hill," Fox)

Nice guys don't always finish last. Sometimes they come in second. Or even first. ("American Idol," Fox)

Resistance is futile. You will be blond. ("The Swan," Fox)

High-school student-teacher romances never end happily ("Life as We Know It," ABC). Actually, we learned this one a few years ago, from "Dawson's Creek" and Mary Kay LeTourneau.

A brief flash of bare female breast is objectionable and unfit to be aired on broadcast television. So, evidently, is filmmaker Steven Spielberg's heartfelt if authentically violent tribute to the American soldiers who defended their homeland and the other Allied nations during World War II. ("Super Bowl XXXVIII," CBS; "Saving Private Ryan," ABC)

Wedding bells for 'Ed' meant end of show

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

Q: Was the NBC show "Ed" canceled? -M.D., via e-mail.

A: Yes, it was. The NBC show ended its four-season run earlier this year with Ed and Carol, played by Tom Cavanagh and Julie Bowen, finally getting married. Don't weep for Cavanagh, though. He's been staying busy with guest shots on shows such as NBC's "Scrubs" and The WB Network's "Jack and Bobby," and he had the starring role in this month's ABC Family Channel movie "Snow."

In fact, when we spoke with him recently about the film, he said about "Ed": "You don't want to leave when you're on the downhill side of the mountain. Hard as it is to say goodbye to something like that, which was an incredible experience for all involved, you owe something that good a modicum of respect when it's time to go. You don't want to exhaust the good will of the audience. In those four years, we told the story of Carol and Ed, and anything that came after would have been anticlimactic."

Tom Cavanagh

Q: When will we see season two of "Mi-5" on A&E Network? -K.R., Chicago.

A: It's scheduled to begin Sunday, Jan. 9.

Q: Before the start of every movie on Turner Classic Movies, there's a black-and-white sequence of a train. What's the significance? -Kevin Hidook, Plettaburgh, N.Y.

A: Other than specifying information about the following movie (rating, whether it's letterboxed, closed-captioned, etc.), it's simply in keeping with the motif of the channel, which also uses images of corner newsstands, open-all-night stores and the like to offer a retro take on a metropolitan atmosphere.

Q: Did John Ritter make any Christmas TV movies? -L.E., Wood-Ridge, N.J.

A: The late actor co-starred as a judge in the 1986 Dolly Parton Christmas, directed by his close friend Henry Winkler. Although it wasn't a television film, one of Ritter's last roles was opposite another pal, Billy Bob Thornton, in the dark 2003 comedy "Bad Santa."

Tom Pelphrey: new bad boy of 'Guiding Light'

Tom Pelphrey

By Paulette Cohn
© Zap2it

When Tom Pelphrey joined the cast of "Guiding Light" as Reva's (Kim Zimmer) long-lost son, Jonathan, it was obvious from the get-go that he was going to be one of daytime's hot bad boys.

And he hasn't disappointed: Sleeping with his cousin made him almost unredeemable, and then there was his recent plunge into the fountain at the country club.

"When I was growing up, I wanted to be Steven Seagal, but they wouldn't let me grow my hair long and put it in a ponytail," recalls the Rutgers graduate. "So I used to grow a little rat tail when I was a kid, because I wanted to be tough and cool."

Watching movies such as "Under Siege" and "On Deadly Ground" also led Pelphrey to sign up for martial arts classes in the eighth and ninth grades.

"I loved it," he says. "I got up to a blue belt."

On nights when he doesn't have to learn lines, Pelphrey is known to pop a Seagal movie in the DVD player, which keeps him on his toes.

A good thing, because when he joined the cast, he says Zimmer told him, "When you work with me, wear a cup, possibly two, because I am going to kick your a—."

Dear Paulette: Can you tell me if the actor who plays Tek on "Days of Our Lives" is the same one who played Jake Sisko on "Star Trek: Deep Space Nine"?

I watch replays of "DS9," and my daughter says they aren't because they have different names, but they have the same look to me. Thanks. -Sheryl S., Clearwater, Fla.

Dear Reader: Your daughter is right: Rhassan Orange plays Thomas Edward Kramer (Tek) on "Days," and Cirroc Lofton played Jake.

Sometimes actors change their names, so I checked their birthdays to make sure they aren't the same person.

Orange was born Aug. 25, 1975, in New York, and Lofton was born in Los Angeles on Aug. 7, 1978.

Orange's other credits include a brief stay on "Guiding Light" (1999) and several years on "Sesame Street" (1978-83).

Sunday

8 p.m. and USA

Movie: The First Wives Club

Goldie Hawn, Diane Keaton and Bette Midler star in this 1996 comedy as three former college friends who reunite at the funeral of a fourth friend who committed suicide after her husband left her. The three learn they have something in common: They've all been dumped by their husbands. As their friendship grows, they find the inner strength to rebuild their lives and get even with their exes.

9 p.m. on BRAV

Cirque du Soleil: Varekai

The innovative troupe brings another of its productions to television. The setting is an unusual world situated at a volcano summit into which a young man parachutes. Before long, he experiences the unusual aspects of the locale and its creatures. The cast includes performers from 13 countries, ranging from the United States and Canada to Italy and Russia.

Monday

8 p.m. on HALL

Movie: Return to Snowy River

As with "The Man From Snowy River," this 1998 sequel showcases gorgeous scenery and excellent cinematography by Keith Wagstaff. Tom Burlinson again plays Jim, who returns to claim his love, Jessica (Sigrid Thornton). Her father (Brian Dennehy) is as against the match as he ever was. Jim must convince Jessica to start a new life with him as a rancher's wife.

Saturday

10 a.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

Tournament of Roses Parade

Best seen on television by allergy sufferers, the annual parade of flower floats has become a tradition for many families. Convenient, considering the theme of this year's event is "Celebrate Family." As expected, there will be prancing horses, marching bands and young women no one knows waving at the crowd. It's not riveting entertainment, but it's something benign to watch while feeding the kids lunch.

TV Trivia

Growing up, Holland Taylor ("Two and a Half Men") was known as "Penny" Taylor, a nickname she received because of her hair color.

Andrea Parker ("Less Than Perfect") probably doesn't need stunt doubles; she is proficient in stunt driving and target shooting.

Thomas Cavanagh ("Snow") graduated from Queen's University in Ontario with three degrees: English, education and biology.

Michael Ian Black ("Ed") was the man behind the voice of the "sock" puppet dog on the "Pets.com" television commercials.

Gabriel Byrne ("Sligmita") worked as an archaeologist, a short-order cook, a schoolteacher and a bullfighter before becoming an actor.

7 p.m. on 4-CBS
Still Standing

In "Still the Man," Bill (Mark Addy) begins to realize that Judy (Jami Gertz) does all the traditional "guy stuff" around the house and decides it's time to reclaim the family pants. He starts by fixing — or trying to fix — a dollhouse for Tina (Soleil Borda). Lauren (Renee O'Leary) is a bit confused by the relationship advice she's getting from three different sources.

7 p.m. on 6-NBC
Fear Factor

The unscripted, often uncomfortable series marked its 100th episode with this trip to New York. Various city landmarks become the settings of challenges as host Joe Rogan puts the latest group of contestants through their paces. The events include a "flag grab" from beneath the Roosevelt Island tram, one of the show's traditionally distasteful meals served in Times Square, and a helicopter stunt near the Statue of Liberty.

8 p.m. on 38-WB
Everwood

"Sacrifice" introduces Anne Heche ("Six Days, Seven Nights") as a recurring cast member. She plays Amanda Hayes, a woman whose husband's (guest star Jason Beghe) illness has left him paralyzed and unable to speak. Dr. Brown (Treat Williams) wants to teach her spouse new methods of communication, but she's afraid of being displaced from the caretaker role she's gotten accustomed to.

8 p.m. on 6-NBC
Crossing Jordan

This series merges with "Las Vegas" in "What Happens in Vegas Dies in Boston." Jordan and Woody (Jill Hennessy, Jerry O'Connell) travel to Vegas to investigate the death of an airplane passenger who landed with $3 million handcuffed to him. James Caan, Josh Duhamel, Vanessa Marcil and Molly Sims make crossover appearances; Snoop Dogg also guest stars.

9 p.m. on 4-CBS
CSI: Miami

Jonathan Silverman ("The Single Guy") guest stars as the boyfriend of a woman who was pushed in front of a bus. He believes her killing — and the subsequent death of a rival at the office — are the work of a stalker. But Caine (David Caruso) isn't ready to let him off the hook yet. Calleigh's (Emily Procter) father fears he may have killed someone while drunk. Meredith Monroe ("Dawson's Creek") also guest stars in "Under the Influence."

Strike up the bands! The new year signals "The 116th Annual Tournament of Roses Parade," which "Today" staple Al Roker covers again for NBC on Saturday, Jan. 1.

"Access Hollywood" co-host, Nancy O'Dell joins Roker for the fifth consecutive year, commenting on the floats, equestrian units and other attractions of the procession as it weaves its way through Pasadena, Calif. The many floral arrangements typical of the event will be keyed to the theme "Celebrate Family."

Star James Galway is no stranger to "Live From Lincoln Center," but the internationally celebrated flutist gets more personal than usual with viewers when he returns to the recurring series in the new episode "Galway at the Penthouse" Wednesday, Dec. 29, on PBS.

In the intimate surroundings of Lincoln Center's Kaplan Penthouse in New York, he discusses and performs short pieces that have special meaning for him. The Orpheus Chamber Orchestra lends musical support.

Indians and learns to appreciate their way of life won Oscars for best picture and best director. Costner stars as John Dunbar, a decorated Union soldier who mans a remote outpost in the Dakotas, where he is the only white man around. He makes contact with the indigenous people, and they slowly get to know one another. Oscar nominees Mary McDonnell and Graham Greene co-star.
